

The ACEP Guide to Completing ABEM MOC PI Activities

To maintain your ABEM certification, you have to complete two practice assessment activities in your 10-year certification cycle.

To make that easier for you, ACEP has designed PI-CME activities you can complete online.

These activities guide you through a process of:

- Comparing your practice to accepted best practices (“Stage A”),
- Taking action to improve your performance (“Stage B”), and then
- Reassessing your practice and reflecting on your PI strategy (“Stage C”).

How It Works

- Each activity has a pathway approved for AMA PRA Category 1 Credit™ and ACEP Category I credit. The pathway consists of two components. The assessment component (Stage A), and the PI strategy and reassessment component (Stages B and C).
- Even if Stage A reveals you’re already in compliance with best practices, you should complete Stages B and C to improve patient safety in your department.
- Your strategy might be to implement suggestions in the PI plans. It might also be to complete the standalone education module, a 1-hour lecture developed by the ACEP Patient Safety CME Task Force in collaboration with the Emergency Medicine Patient Safety Foundation.
- So even if you’re already performing well, you’ll likely learn something you can implement right away to improve your processes.
- Physicians certified by the American Board of Emergency Medicine may satisfy one current Assessment of Practice Performance requirement by completing this activity. (“Activity” defined as Stages A, B, and C.)

- The standalone module is approved for additional credit. You may purchase it from the ACEP eCME Course Catalog; the regular fee is $75, and the ACEP member fee is $49.

Ready to get started?

- How to Complete this ABEM MOC PI Activity / Method of Participation
- How Much CME Credit Can You Earn?
- Hardware and Safety Requirements
- ACEP Privacy Policy and Copyright Notice
- Terms of Service
- Disclaimer